Keep your house from straying over on the head of your neighbor. Be particular about this if he has any crop growing there.
Light, dry soil, not overrich, suits the pea. Sow as early as ground can be worked and again every ten days for succession.
After all, it is the producing power of the farm that determines the boy in his going "on playing." Show him there's money in it, and he will stick to the old farm like a sand-bur to a sheep's tail.
Any number of disinterested farmers have spent enough time looking around at other places to have paid off the mortgage on their old place.

GATHERED UP.
A level-headed man avoids many ups and downs in life.
Some folks find out how far a dollar will go by seeing how far they can go on a dollar.
I am always content with that which happens, for I think that what God chooses is better than what I choose—Epictetus.
There is but small chance for the one who can do a little of everything and not much of anything. Centralization is the keynote of success these days.
"I'll be ready in a minute," she said to her husband.
"You needn't hurry now," he called up some time later. "I find that I shall have to shave again."—Detroit Free Press.
Without thought, grave, deliberate, self-conscious thought, life will run shallow in every channel. Every active duty needs to build foundations downward through habit of quiet thought.

Don't Scrub Kitchen Floors
Paint that kitchen floor instead of scrubbing it every few days or buying expensive coverings that grow dingy and show wear. You can do it yourself. It's easy and costs only a trifle.
ACME QUALITY FLOOR PAINT (Granite)
is the ideal finish for kitchen, pantry and laundry floors, steps and inside surfaces to be walked upon. It's hard, durable, sanitary, easy to apply, easy to keep clean, hard to wear out. Brush it on tonight and you can walk on it tomorrow.
If it's a surface to be painted, enameled, stained, varnished or finished in any way, there's an Acme Quality Kind to fit the purpose.

With the common knowledge of the earning of the farm flocks has come a desire to keep more fowls and make their keeping a special department of the farm operations.
We think it always best to plow early for late potatoes and then work frequently to kill weeds and conserve moisture and warm up the ground and then not plant until about the middle of June.

All rubbish about the place that would harbor insects and other pests should be cleaned up and burned. If it has not already been done, hotbeds and cold-frames should be cleaned up and soil prepared for bedding.
To prevent disease, keep the hens at work by making them scratch for their grain food. Overfeeding is the cause of bowel diseases in the summer, or rather, too much concentrated food is given and not enough of that which is bulky. If the quarters are kept clean there is little danger of contagious disease unless an addition is made to the flock by bringing a bird from some other farm.

A visit to a first-class dairy farm in these days will show how every modern invention is seized upon and applied to expedite the business of caring for the animals and milk. The stables are almost as cleanly as parlors, while everything is carried on so systematically and methodically that there is a great contrast between the methods of to-day and the olden time.
A well-covered building is worth keeping painted. If well done and as often as needed, painting will add to the durability and good looks of the building. A farmer should himself be able to paint a barn or other out-buildings. Autumn is a good time for this kind of work.

Rather oddly, while dairy cows seem to show an instinctive aversion to profane and rough language in their caretakers and will shrink in their milk if this becomes the rule, they do not mind whistling or a song in the least, but seem rather to enjoy it.
Every farmer should yearly set aside a generous plot of ground for the children to cultivate and should instruct and interest them in the care of it, for they will not take up its cultivation of themselves, because—well, that is not human nature! But once revealed to them the pleasure and satisfaction and propagating plants, and they will be very quick to follow it up thereafter.

A garden is, in reality, an endless source of amusement and entertainment for young and old alike, as soon as they come to be interested in it. It is art and nature striving together to outdo each other in the attempt to please the onlooker. It affords something new daily to wonder at and admire, and so draws us closer to nature and world of wonders out of doors.
Every man knows that the man behind the cow has a lot to do with her yield and her well being—as much so as the man in front. The milk can run a cow just as well as the feeder can. It is not only the decreased milk yield that makes the poor milkman an expensive piece of furniture, but the leaving of milk in the udder encourages udder troubles, and in time will make the small yield a chronic habit in the cow.

Thousands of fruit trees will be set from season to season, and it is safe to say that many hundreds of them will be improperly set, the main fault being with the preparation of the tree before it is set. Time was when it was generally thought necessary to preserve each tiny root, possessed by the tree and to spread them out carefully before covering them with soil. It is now known that the trees grow much better if the roots are shortened to about six inches.
Not so many years ago "farm" was about as scornful slang term as could be applied to anybody who blundered, stumbled or "got in bad." But what would the average man in the streets say today if somebody shouted at him "You farmer? Wouldn't he throw his chest out and spring a smile as broad as if he owned a gold mine? He certainly would. The farmer doesn't wear his hayseed in his hair any longer. He sells it and buys an automobile.

The Bride—That nasty Mrs. Jones, next door, said I'd better try this biscuits on the day before I gave 'em to you. The groom—Hain't got a mean disposition? Why, I thought she was fond of dogs?—Cleveland Leader.
Our business is now to make the most of this great and beautiful experiment of living—to leave behind us flowers for a harmony, our ending a serenity and our awakening an eternal joy.—John Page Hopps.
"Stand up, McNulty," said the police magistrate. "Are you guilty or not guilty?"
"Faith, an' it's meself as can't tell till I'll hear the evidence," replied McNulty.—Chicago News.

"I hear, doctor, that my friend Brown, whom you have been treating so long for liver trouble, has died of stomach trouble." "Don't you believe all you hear," replied the doctor. "When I treat a man for liver trouble, he dies of liver trouble."—Everybody's.

"Caesar," said a good-natured gentleman to his colored man, "I did not know till today that you had been whipped last week." "Didn't you, Massa?" replied Caesar. "I know'd it at the time!"
"Would it be any harm to deceive her about my age?" inquired the elderly millionaire.
"Probably not."
"In '60. How would it do to confess to 60?"
"I think your chances would be better with her if you claimed 75."—Washington Herald.

Whether in the case of neighbors or members of the same household, it holds that when two people set out to see how mean they can be they seem to succeed, each surpassing the other by a good lap every turn in the game, to the increasing wrath and discomfiture of both parties concerned.
Many a boy or man has been able to live a clean and decent life because of a feeling of self-respect—a regard for the worth and sacredness of his own personality—or from consideration of a family record before him in which he has felt just pride. Fortunate indeed are those who have an anchor of this type when times of stress and temptation come on.

GIANTS IN OUR DAY.
My friends, if in the deep and quiet of your lives you listen closely, you will hear a voice that bids you go forth and take part in the giant movements for the uplift and betterment of the world. You will hear a voice that bids you go forth and be giants, towering in spiritual stature far above all self-seeking and petty individual interests. Harkon with the ears of your heart and you will hear a voice that bids you go forth and prove by the mighty stature of your life that there are giants in the earth of our day.—Rev. Waldo Adams Ames.

Jones, Ralph Barrell, Elmer Thayer, Abner Howe, George Crawford and Ralph Thomas; finance, A. B. Vining and Walter R. Field; Arthur Barnes of Summer street, Weymouth and Miss Olive Pierce of Main street were quietly married in marriage on Monday evening, April 25th by Rev. G. S. Scrivenor of the Methodist church of East Weymouth. The affair was very quiet the ceremony being performed at the home of Rev. Mr. Scrivenor. A reception was held at the bride's home on Main street. Mrs. Barnes is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Pierce and was formerly the son of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Barnes of Summer street. Mrs. Pierce, brother of the bride was bestman. The bride was attended in a beautiful gown of blue silk and carried a beautiful bouquet of flowers. After a short trip to visit in Maine they will make their home on Summer street with the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Barnes. They were the recipients of many beautiful and costly presents and received congratulations from the neighboring towns.

—Witley Lodge, No. 21, I. O. O. F. celebrated the 91st anniversary of Oddfellowship in America in Foggy's opera house, last Tuesday evening. Though they had a bad night owing to the continuous down-pour of rain there were about 175 persons present. The committee in charge of the affair were J. A. Hollis, N. G. L. Callahan, V. G. W. Tirrell, rec. sec. Shaw, and E. E. J. Fisher, treas., assisted by W. Baker, A. Thayer, O. B. Torrey, C. Clapp and Q. E. Lund. The banquet was from 7 to 8 o'clock, consisting of meats, salads, fish, cakes, etc., being served by Westover and Foss, caterers from Boston. After the supper the concert, which lasted from 8 to 9 o'clock, was given by Mae Gay's orchestra of six pieces. Ralph Barrell was floor director, assisted by Calvin Zeale, Elmer Thayer and Alfred Lund.

—A whist party was held at the home of Miss Mary Ann Mahoney, last Tuesday evening. The honors were taken by Miss Susie Connors and Augustus J. Ross. A collation was then served.

—Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Evans who have been spending the winter in Brockton returned to their home on Charles street.

—Miss Alice Crocker of Weymouth was the guest of East Weymouth relatives on Monday last.

—The annual meeting of the Epworth League was held in the Methodist Episcopal church vestry, Monday evening. Business was carried on in the form of a town meeting, with Mr. Scrivenor as moderator. The report of the secretary shows the league to be in splendid condition, all the departments working successfully, a full treasury and the members enthusiastic for the coming year. After the business was transacted, the meeting was changed into a court of law. Arthur C. Bicknell was chosen judge; Edward M. Andrews, attorney for the plaintiff; and Curtis Shaw, for the state. A jury was impaneled and brought in a verdict for the state. The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Franklin N. Pratt, 1st vice president, Miss Nellie Purchase; 2d vice president, Miss Ethel Bartlett; 3d vice president, Miss Ida L. Bates; 4th vice president, Miss Helen Stewart; secretary, Arthur C. Bicknell, and treasurer, Edward M. Andrews.

—A small but thoroughly delighted audience listened to Mr. Alvah Glover Salmon, pianist, last Friday night at the closing concert of the Organ Fund Course at the M. E. Church. Mr. Salmon has not only a name in his own country but also international reputation, which reputation he thoroughly sustained at the concert. It is impossible to go into detail over the program, except to say that it was well selected to give an idea of the Russian School of Music, and was most excellently played.

—One of the bright spots in the life of Z. L. Bicknell's Co., No. 2 is its well established custom was continued by a gathering, banquet, talk and music Tuesday night. During the early hours of the evening members of the company with invited guests gathered at the Engine House and at nine o'clock a line was formed and marched to the banquet room. The first speaker introduced was Captain William L. Orcutt called the meeting to order and after words of welcome introduced Mr. W. E. Keene. It was at that moment that Mr. Keene is no novice as toast master and the hour and more in which he presided was a marked one for sociability mixed with suggestions for the good service. The order of entertainment was music with Dr. E. N. Bates at the piano and Oliver Barrell, violin. The first speaker introduced was William J. Dunbar, local member of the Board of Selectmen spoke of the development of the Weymouth Fire Department and devotion of the men connected with it. John Q. Hunt, local engineer and supervisor said his work was of no man and he had never known them to fail when called on duty. Fred C. Coolidge superintendent of the Fire Alarm System spoke of the peculiar features of his department. Other speakers were officers Butler and Pratt and members of the company. Oliver Barrell gave several poetic recitations and now the scene was lighted with something lively in our time jigs dances.

—Donald and Malcolm Campbell of Fair Haven, have been visiting their parent parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Raymond this week.

—Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Heald of Dedham were the guests of local friends on Sunday.

—Mrs. Minnie Haas Kattell was entertained by Miss Aldie Chandler the early part of the week.

—Miss Helen of Hingham was the guest of Miss Helen Stewart of Cedar street, last Monday.

—Mr. and Mrs. James A. Radcliffe of Worcester, were entertained by relatives in this place over Sunday.

—Mrs. Fred Lund of Commercial street was visiting out-of-town friends a few days of the past week.

—Thursday, the Feast of the Ascension was observed as a Holy Day in the church of the Immaculate Conception, with Masses at 5:30 and 8, and Benediction in the evening. Friday being the first Friday of the month, usual Sacred Heart devotions took place. During the entire month of May, Masses will be said morning at 7:30 in honor of the Blessed Virgin.

—A party of twelve from East Weymouth and vicinity attended the Wednesday evening matinee of James K. Hackett in "Monseigneur Beauregard."

—Extra cars are being run on the Hingham and Nantasket lines on Saturday nights to accommodate the crowds that patronize the Paragon Park dance hall.

—John G. Easton and J. Walter Howley have started training for a fifteen mile road race to take place in Montpelier, Vermont, on June 17.

—Dr. Thomas J. Connel of Pleasant street, who is in the Long Island Hospital in Boston Harbor, was at home this week.

—As usual, May night was observed by the younger element this year and Monday and Tuesday morning, showed evidence of pranks of the night before. Board walks were taken from man's yard and across the street to a yard about two hundred yards further along, and a few early in the morning wondering how long their property had been advertised for sale, as the misplaced temper seemed to show. One strictly temperate gentleman on Middle street was much surprised to see an angry line of men with a pinner and sticks on their front door steps. The police were well detailed and no such serious disturbances such as those of last year were reported.

—The Ladies' Social Circle of the M. E. Church will meet in the ladies' parlor, Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. A full attendance is desired.

—Mrs. John A. Raymond is suffering with an attack of tonsillitis at her home on Hill Crest Road.

—Mr. and Mrs. James Ford are receiving many congratulations on the birth of a grandson last Saturday. The little one has been named Alden and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alden H. Speare of Allston.

A Noontday Treat

There is a proverb old that reads, Just look before you leap; And many a dollar will be saved That goes for goods that are cheap.

For cheap goods never satisfy, But to our lives they add, A little more experience And wisdom that's not bad.

Then try our famous dinner roll, Or some we make for tea; The finest roll that can be found In our vicinity.

They cost no more than others make, Made from a cheaper flour; They satisfy the troubled mind Like a convincing shower.

ON THE FARM
This column is worth more than $2.00 a year to you. Subscribe for the Gazette.

In this department to which we devote much time and for which we receive many pleasing compliments we have been devoting time and space to sheep but a fine little flock of sheep and lambs at the farm of Frank F. Fay, Broad street, suggests that an interest might be awakened along this line and we give our readers a few points this week.

Sheep do not interfere with, but fit nicely into modern farming.

Protect sheep from cold rains. The fleece will hold a large amount of water, and it takes a long time to dry.

Sheep are finding new homes on many of the best farms in the country, as farmers are fast learning that the demand for high-class mutton is rapidly increasing.

There are many breeds of legs and all have their partisans, but any leg is a good leg that will keep on growing into money every day. However, no breed will do this without intelligent care.

Yelling at a young horse that is learning only confuses him and gets him excited, and if the load is too heavy you make a barker and a spoiled horse right there.

The scrub farmer will do well to confine his attention to scrub stock and not launch into the business of raising full bloods, which to do well must have first class care.

The untilled orchard or berry patch means not only a checking of the growth and a reducing of the productive capacity of tree and bush, but it also means an unsanitary harbor and place of retreat for the many insect enemies.

Young chicks must keep their feet dry, especially nights. A good coop can be made of a dry goods box turned down on the side, and raised an inch or so from the ground. Put on a roof, a door with hinges, and a button to fasten it, and cover the whole with a good roofing paper.

When weaning a litter, take only the strongest away at first, then a few more, and so on, so that the sow is gradually dried off. By this method the sow may be saved much suffering and the weaker pigs given a good start.

Soil land is very good for almost all crops if the season is seasonably early and other conditions are favorable. One of the worst troubles with corn in soil land is that the cutworms living in the soil destroy much of the young corn. By plowing soil land for corn in late fall or early winter many of the cutworms will be destroyed.

It is quite generally admitted today that some effective system of barn ventilation is necessary if cattle and other stabled live stock are to be kept in healthy condition. The germs of tuberculosis and other diseases thrive best in barns which are not well ventilated. Fresh air and sunlight are exactly the best germ destroyers known to man. Both may be obtained at a nominal cost and with but very little difficulty.

The silo is a text which is always inspiring to the man who has a silo, and it cannot be preached from too often. Wherever it is seen it denotes good farming. It solves the problem of turning into the highest efficiency that portion of the corn crop which fails to reach the desired maturity as feed. The silo can be filled at less expense than the same amount of dry feed can be carried for and it makes better feed. This is, after all, the main point to consider.

There is no class of live stock that looks as well on the farm as a flock of well cared for sheep, and no other stock will take as good care of the farm. Sheep may be regarded as gleaners of weeds and briars. And, then, the weed seeds eaten by sheep will not germinate in the manure and when once destroyed by eating are entirely destroyed.

Until lately pea vines, the byproduct of pea canneries, were a waste product, the kind of which involved a good deal of expense. As a result of experiments which have been conducted by the federal department of agriculture, it has been found that these same vines can be made into a hay that is a satisfactory feed for cattle, horses and sheep, while they may be converted into a silage which makes an excellent ration for dairy cows.

SUBMARINE RIVERS.
Cold Water Currents Flowing Along the Deep Sea Bottom.

The bottom currents of seas and oceans, such as those which possibly bring amber to our shores, are strange things. The seigneur of Sark some fifty years ago was shipwrecked in his yacht near the island of Guernsey. He lost, among other things, a well fastened, strongly made chest containing silver plate. It was found a year later in deep water off the coast of Norway and restored to him.

In the really deep sea over a thousand fathoms down there are thought to be rivers of water which may be marked broad currents of very cold water only a few degrees or so above freezing point. They flow along the deep sea bottom and are sharply marked off from the warmer waters above and to from the warmer waters are different from those of the warmer water. They are due to the melting of the polar ice, the cold water so formed sinking at once owing to its greater density below the warmer water of the surface currents.

These deep currents originate in both the arctic and antarctic regions—Sir Ray Lankester in London Telegraph.

GATHERED UP.

Men's minds are as unlike as their faces.
A good heater is better than a good speaker.
A teacher can lead us into the porch, but culture depends on self.

It is often more difficult to forget than it is to remember.

If a fellow gets to going down hill it seems as if everything were greased for the occasion.—Josh Billings.

Put ten men on an island, each with ten dollars. In ten months one man will have a hundred dollars and the others nothing.

Spending today is not done generally with any systematic idea of value. We are tempted to buy all sorts of things which, however, have no intrinsic value for all of us. The spending habit is as bad as any intemperate habit.

She—Do you prefer an ugly woman with brains or a pretty woman without any?
He—Madam, I prefer present company to either.

And she is still wondering exactly what he meant.—The Tatler.

Joseph G. Cannon has saved this country hundreds of millions of dollars, and the men who are heaping abuse upon him now may be contributing ten years hence for a monument to his memory.—Hon. John W. Weeks.

Know the true value of time: snatch, seize and enjoy every moment of it. No idleness, no laziness, no procrastination; never put off till tomorrow what can be done today.—Lord Chesterfield.

He—Would you please, madam, have the kindness to remove your hat? I have paid three dollars for my seat in order to see.
She—And I have paid forty dollars for my hat in order to have it seen.—Judge.

"That candidate insists that he was defeated by the trusts."
"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum, "because a man gets the worst of it, he likes to console himself with the idea that he had a mighty big antagonist."—Washington Star.

"You say you have quit smoking?"
"Yes; never going to smoke again."
"Then why don't you throw away those cigars?"

"Never! I throw away a box of good cigars the last time I quit smoking, and it taught me a lesson."—Houston Post.

"Physical culture, father, is perfectly lovely. To develop the arms I grasp this rod by one end and move it slowly from right to left."
"Well, well," exclaimed her father, "what would science discover? If that rod laid straw at the other end you'd be sweeping."—Illustrated Bits.

There are two kinds of criticism, the one tears down, demolishes and leaves despair or desolation in its wake; the other is constructive criticism which builds up, creates, and invigorates; the kind that not only picks out the flaws, discovers imperfections, but suggests a remedy for them as well. Constructive criticism is the only kind that will help.

The Father of His Country, in his farewell address, which he left as a precious legacy to his countrymen, earnestly exhorts them to abstain from being involved in entangling alliances with other nations and to cultivate friendship with all of them. This solemn admonition was reaffirmed by Jefferson in his inaugural address, which has been handed down from one administration to another as a sacred oracle, and has now acquired almost the force and authority of law.

A ROTHSCHILD JOKE.
The celebrated millionaire, Rothschild, was once spending a night in a little village in the mountains, and after having his dinner, asked for the bill. When it came it was exorbitant, and Rothschild asked for the innkeeper.

"Look here, my man," he said, "just tell me why you have charged 3 francs for an omelette. Are eggs so scarce here in this part of the world?"

"No, sir," replied the man; "eggs are cheap enough; it is the Rothschilds who are so scarce with us."

To The Minstrels of The Spring.
Ye little birds that make the morn Melodious with mirth,
And flutter to the breeze,
The Spring her banners green unfurled,
Those same gay songs have cheered the world.

Your sweet bird symphonies! Yet ever new hopes they bring When tender buds are blossoming, And larks are in the trees.
O happy are the thoughts that come Awakening at your song,
To nestle close within my heart,
There to abide and never depart.

The joyful, joyous throng— Through all the long, sweet April day! So sing away! Your roundelay Make full and loud and long!

—Louella C. Poole.

Thoughts.
Thoughts are much greater than things. They are vital forces and have endless effects. What you think today determines what you will be in years to come.

Easily Granted.
Tommy—Ma, can I have two pieces of pie this noon?
Ma—Certainly, Tommy. Cut the piece you have in two.—Somerville Journal.

First Church Notes "Old North"

The annual church meeting was held last Wednesday evening in the chapel at 6:30 o'clock. A sumptuous repast was partaken after which about 60 members responded to the roll call with a scripture verse. The business of the past year was discussed and several reports accepted. On account of the lateness of the hour, the election of officers for the ensuing year was postponed until an adjourned meeting. Music was furnished by a quartette.

EAST WEYMOUTH AND WEYMOUTH CENTER

—Grant and Hayes world's progressive moving pictures at Town Hall, Saturday night. New features, new songs. Performance at 8 o'clock. Special care to all parts of the town at close of performance.

—Master Roger Burgoine of East street has been troubled this week with a sore throat.

—Miss Ruby Carter entertained a number of her friends at a house party, Tuesday evening, at her home on Commercial street.

—Many friends of Prof. Daniel Evans, former pastor of the Congregational church, gave him a cordial greeting as he supplied the pulpit last Sunday morning and evening. The eight or nine years since Prof. Evans left East Weymouth have dealt kindly with him physically and in the line of his chosen work.

—Next Sunday will be observed as the twenty-second anniversary of the Epworth League at the Methodist Episcopal church. The Annual Sun Rise Prayer Meeting will be held at seven o'clock, and in the evening at seven thirty o'clock, a special service will be held at which the pastor, Rev. G. G. Servener, will install the newly elected officers. A special program has been arranged of which the exercises by the Junior League will be a part.

—The Golden Rule Circle of King's Daughters with friends, enjoyed a visit to the Rev. Mr. Servener at the Epworth League at the Methodist Episcopal church, on Thursday last week.

—Miss Neva W. Nash, teacher of music in the public schools of the town, has been confined to her home this week with an attack of tonsillitis.

—Mrs. Joseph E. Sampson attended the twentieth anniversary of the Inasmuch Circle of King's Daughters of Hyde Park, on Tuesday.

—A special meeting of the Ladies' Social Union of the Congregational church will be held in the chapel next Tuesday evening at the close of the Prayer Meeting.

—Mrs. Parker T. Pearson has been spending the week with friends in Warren.

—At the annual meeting of the Home Missionary Society held in the chapel of the Congregational church on Tuesday afternoon, the following officers were elected: Vice presidents, Mrs. N. D. Canterbury, Miss Josie Cummings; secretary, Mrs. Henry Hawkes; treasurer, Miss Janet A. Harlow.

—Mrs. T. H. Emerson, who has been quite ill at her home in East Braintree, is slowly recovering.

—Nathan Marden, who is making his home with Mr. and Mrs. Bowker on Grove street, was both surprised and delighted upon receiving a handsome and tempting map basket, last Thursday evening, from the City of Beaters. The basket was filled with Misses Olive Sylvester, Grace Carlton, Hazel Dole, Mildred Pease, and Marion Bowker, and a former class in the Methodist Episcopal church Sunday school with Miss Mildred Bates as teacher.

—A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cowing, on Wednesday of this week.

—Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Rivlin and family have moved from Weymouth Heights to East Weymouth, occupying the house owned by William A. Wagon and formerly occupied by Mr. and Mrs. James Davis.

—John P. McVim of South St., Weymouth, is spending the week with relatives on Commercial street.

—Michael Carroll of Charles street recently in his former position as foreman of the factory No. 3 at Montello.

—The cottages on the shore of Whitman Pond are proving an attraction for their owners on Saturdays and Sundays. On last Sunday, all but four of the many cottages and camps were occupied.

—F. W. Percy of West Hingham claims the honor of having landed the largest pickerel caught this year in the Weymouth pond. He is reported to have displayed a pickerel last Saturday which tipped the scales of 67.5 pounds. This may be out of season but nevertheless, those not satisfied with the report, have the privilege of asking Mr. Percy.

—F. J. Insley Young has purchased of Mrs. E. S. Lovell, the house recently vacated by L. E. Colony on Commercial street and with his family, soon take up their residence there.

—Mrs. Helena Triller and family who have spent the winter in Boston, are now at their home on Middle street.

—After a very short illness, Charles Deslauries of North street passed quietly away at his home last Thursday afternoon. Mr. Deslauries has been a long resident of the town and served for many years on the police force and was a constant for some time. He is survived by four sons, John L., Joseph, William E., and Charles W. and one daughter, Mrs. William Lynch. The funeral took place from his late residence Saturday at 9 o'clock followed by a Mass of requiem at the church of the Immaculate Conception Rev. James W. Allison was the celebrant. The interment was at St. Francis Xavier cemetery and the bearers were John Deslauries and Joseph Deslauries.

—N. B. Perry is spending a two weeks' vacation with relatives at West Leeds, Me., where he expects to enjoy some fine trout fishing.

—Miss Ethel Allen is spending a few days with Mrs. Arthur Cortell.

—The herring which have been taken a rest the last two weeks were up again in large numbers Monday and Tuesday.

—Miss Emily Endicott who has been ill for a number of days is out again.

—Mrs. J. McDonald who has been dangerously ill the last winter is greatly improved.

—Albert Smith, Jr., will go to Michigan in a few days to accept a position with an engineering company.

Four and Its Multiple of Ten.

The number four was anciently esteemed the most perfect of all, being the arithmetic mean between one and seven. On this, the second calling, said, "Four things come not back—the spoken word, the seed arrow, the past life, the neglected opportunity." In nature there are four seasons and the four points of the compass.

Forty, a multiple of four by ten, is one of the sacred numbers. The proportion of our first parents in the garden of Eden is supposed to have been forty years. The rain fell at the deluge forty days and nights, and the water remained on the earth forty days.

The days of ennobling the dead were forty. Solomon's temple was forty cubits long. In it were ten layers, each four cubits long and containing forty bath.

Moses was forty days old when he died in the land of Midian, where he dwelt forty years. He was on Mount Sinai forty days and forty nights. The Israelites wandered in the wilderness forty years. The Saviour fasted forty days and nights before entering upon public life. The same time elapsed between the resurrection and the ascension—Exchange.

THE MASKE WOMAN
By ALICE T. SHERWIN

During the protectorate of Cromwell there appeared in one stalls (or shops, as we would call in the Royal Exchange, London) a masked woman who sold small wares, such as gloves, laces, needles and other goods, called by the name of haberdashery.

One day the Marquis of Ebor-

"I would fain buy of your mistress, but I am without means." "Select what you wish, sir, at once when Charlie comes home."

Now, the term "when Charlie home" meant in those days Charles, eldest son of the king and legitimate heir to the throne is recalled to assume his rights as sovereign of England."

"I see," said the marquise, "that a royalist. Mayhap you are myself, an impoverished noble."

"I am a royalist, but I am the masked woman making a living. These gloves would fit you. Will you let me try them on your hand?"

The marquise permitted her the gloves on him, but not with pretention of buying them. He felt her fingers on his own.

"There," she said when she finished; "it's a perfect fit. Take and pay, as I said, 'when he comes home.'"

But the marquis stubbornly refused to accept credit, especially from a commoner, for the woman had said "I am simply the masked woman" and he went away.

At that time, however, something in

But there was something in her nature, the voice, the carriage, the masked woman that appealed in a way he could not account for. Wherever he went the masked woman in fancy went with him. Was sleeping, he saw her moving at her little booth and heard the sounds of her voice.

"So it was not long before I found himself at her counter pointing that he came to look over goods, though in reality he came to get another glimpse of her.

"What can I sell you this morning?" she said.

"Indeed, Mistress Masked!"

"I know not your name—I am a stranger here, and I like to converse with the good folk of this town."

"What they have spent it for not, but this I know—it is hard on the boys, always had a snuff-

"May I sell you the gloves?"

"Alas, I have no more than withal to pay for them than was here before."

The masked woman took gloves the marquis had tried day before and, making them weighty, handed them to him.

"Would you give a poor pleasure?" she asked softly.

"I would not rob a poor woman replied, drawing back.

"I ask you to permit me to this favor."

There was that in her tone appealed to him. He took the and kissed the hand that gave by the king. The young Duchess of Abergild, whose husband had fallen in the late war, went and approached the marquis. "Have you still the gloves?" she asked archly. The marquis recognized her at once as she spoke. "I have indeed," but have never worn them since."

The duchess, having been from her income during the rate, had the choice of emigrating to France and there being supported by the French king or earning her living. She had chosen the latter alternative.

GATHERED UP.
Some persons do first, think afterward and repeat forever.
The business of a promoter is to persuade your money into his pocket.

Never does a man show his lack of faith in his cause so much as when he is willing to lie for it.

The great question is not so much what money you have in your pocket as what you will buy with it.—Hoskin.

Mrs. Noobridge—Yes, dear, I was married last month. I'd like you to call on me and see the pretty little flat I have.
Miss Jelluse—I've seen him, my dear.

The Selectmen of Hyde Park recently voted not to grant any express permits to transport liquor, or druggist licenses to sell liquor.

An exchange says there are two reasons why some people don't mind their own business. One is that they haven't any mind, and the other is that they haven't any business.

Fair Girl—My father made his fortune when he was a young man. Would you like to know how he did it?
Gallant Youth—Not particularly; but I would like to know if he still has it.—Catholic News.

The right kind of a boy with a peace-shooter can take a more delicate of his business troubles and politics quicker than anything else in this bleak, cold world.

The Youth—Yes, I'm in business for myself, but I don't seem to be able to meet with any success.
The Sage—Nobody ever meets with business, young man. He must overtake it.—Philadelphia Press.

Visitor—So your boy is in college, is he, Mr. Cornsleepe? Farmer—I can't say exactly. It's in their ball nine, and in their rowin' crew, an' in their jimjazzum, an' in their dormitory, but whether he's ever in their college is more'n I kin find out by his letters.—Harper's Bazar.

If the movement to boost a town is to be successful, you must believe in it—you must do your part to help it. I am talking to you men, who read this article, to you men, who have been sitting back and waiting for the boom to arrive, but have not offered your assistance.

Hate never made any man happy. But to be a hater, you must believe in it—you must do your part to help it. I am talking to you men, who read this article, to you men, who have been sitting back and waiting for the boom to arrive, but have not offered your assistance.

There is not a moment of any of our lives when nature is not producing scene after scene, picture after picture, glory after glory, and working still upon such exquisite and constant principles of the most perfect beauty that it is quite certain that it is all done for us and intended for our perpetual pleasure.—Raskin.

Why is it that the "booster" movements in Western towns and cities have been so successful? Why are these towns growing better and better every day, and why is it so many Eastern towns are standing still? It is not because the former are more advantageously situated, but rather because of the enthusiasm—yes, more than that, it is the loyalty of their citizens.

Erasmus Wilson, editor of the Pittsburgh Evening Gazette and Times, created a deal of amusement during his story of the fight against municipal corruption in that city by saying that out of the 170 city officials "only 105 have been sent to the penitentiary"—which is doing pretty well—and that the chapters of the institution "are the most respectable looking congregation in the city."

OUT OF FORM.
"President Taft likes golf, and he plays a fairly good game," said a Chevy Chase caddy. "A fairly good game, at least when he's in form."

"He was out of form one day when he played here. He was just back from Cuba and I guess the voyage had upset him. After some pretty bad work on the first two holes, he said apologetically to the caddy, a stranger from the East: "I'm certainly out of form today. I've been on a sea voyage, you see. It must have upset me."

"Played before, have ye?" said the caddy.

BREAKING UP "CHATTER."
The famous painter Fuseli had a great contempt for chatter. One afternoon a party of friends paid a visit to his studio, and after a few moments spent in looking at the pictures they seated themselves and proceeded to indulge in a long and purposeless talk. At last, in one of the slight pauses, Fuseli said earnestly, "I had pork for dinner today."

"Why, my dear Mr. Fuseli," exclaimed one of the startled group, "what an extremely odd remark!"

"Is it?" said the painter indignantly. "Why, isn't it as interesting and important as anything that has been said for the last hour?"

A Social Botanist.
Guest—He seems a very nice young man. What's his profession? Hostess—He's a social botanist. Guest—And what is that, pray? Hostess—Oh, we invite him especially to give attention to our wallflowers.—Boston Transcript.

The Moisture.
"Does your wife cry when she gets angry?"
"Yes," answered Mr. Meekton. "It isn't the heat of her temper that distresses me so much as the humidity."—Washington Star.

Ways to an Untimely End.
The catalogue of the ways and means employed by otherwise sensible people to incur the risk of disease and an untimely end include running to catch trolley cars, breathing rapidly through the mouth instead of deeply through the nose, eating too hastily and overeating, "slouching" instead of standing and walking in an erect attitude, using unnecessary stimulants, failing to exterminate the pestiferous household, which goes blithely about carrying the germs of disease; sleeping in ill ventilated rooms and failing to protect food from flies and other insects by proper screening.—Philadelphia Press.

ON THE FARM
This column is worth more than $2.00 a year to you. Subscribe for the Gazette.

Four seeds to the inch is a good rule in sowing peas in rows. The plants can be afterward thinned out to two to the inch.

Early peas do best on good, warm loamy soil, not over-rich, but yet not poor. When too rich, the growth runs more to vines than peas.

It is better to keep fewer cattle and keep them well than to poorly care for a greater number.

What profits a man if he raises a fine lot of chicks and then allows the middle man to get the biggest end of the profits?

Nothing need be wasted on the farm where sheep are kept—tufts of grass, weeds and aftermath and odd bits of feed can all be utilized and converted into wool and mutton.

Whether you are keeping sheep for pleasure or profit, your desires will be more fully met if your flock is of superior quality.

Every change in feeding should be gradual and with an eye open to note the results. It is no more our mission to keep the hogs healthy than it is to plan our equipment so that they may keep themselves so.

One of the chief causes of mortality among chicks is feeding too much sloppy food, which often gets sour before it is eaten, and the force bound to cause disturbance of the bowels, and probably death.

In starting into the poultry business the average man or woman is apt to get too enthusiastic and attempt to do too much. The better way is to start on a small scale and enlarge as your experience and capability will justify. The notion that most anybody can make a success of raising poultry on a large scale has been disproved times without number.

The modern packer utilizes every type of hog from the 75-pound pig up to the 700-pound boar or stag. In general, taking it one day with another, our experience is that the cures of hog which sells to best advantage—the hog that makes the best average price one day with another, week in and week out—is the good breeding, regardless of particular strain or type, carrying good flesh and well matured for his weight.

Both methods of plowing manure under and surface applications are practiced, and each will have its advantages. Coarse, straw manure should produce the best results by plowing under, as it is difficult incorporating it with the surface soil to any satisfactory degree by harrowing. Turned under it will be lost of the way of cultivation, decay and furnish food for the roots of the plants as they extend downward.

No farm animal is more susceptible to disease than the hog. And no farm animal is so hard to treat or so liable to die as the hog once he is attacked by disease. Often disease comes, takes the whole herd and leaves the owner with only vain regrets. He was not more careful in caring for his hogs or that he had not hesitated before turning new stock in with the herd. The best plan in hog raising is to be eternally vigilant in preventing disease.

Pure, wholesome milk kept in a clean cellar or milk house, where the temperature is not over seventy degrees, will be kept sweet for thirty six hours, and will not become thick under forty eight hours. Otherwise something is wrong with the cows. A cow exposed to the hot sun in a pasture, or having impure water to drink, cannot be in a healthy condition, and the first appearance of trouble will be the premature souring of the milk.

An attractive placard, headed with a picture of four horses and the words, "Please be kind to us—We work hard for you," is being circulated in Cincinnati by the Ohio Humane Society. It reads as follows:

"Please give us water often.
"Please give us a moment's rest on the way up the hill.
"Please don't overload us. We are doing our best.
"Please don't use the whip. It is seldom necessary.
"Please remember that we will respond to a word as quickly as to a blow.
"Please look out for our health and don't work us when we are sick.
"Please see that we are properly shod.
"Please be sure that we have enough to eat and that we are fed regularly.
"Please keep us in such good condition that you'll be proud to drive the horse and don't chafe sore or tender spots.
"Please remember that two weeks' vacation each year will make us more serviceable and valuable.
"Remember we work hard for you and get no pay.
"Never strike, beat or kick me when I fail to understand you. Watch me, and if I refuse to do your bidding, see if there is not something wrong with my harness."

EAST WEYMOUTH AND WEYMOUTH CENTER.

—Grant and Hayes world's progressive moving pictures at Town Hall, Saturday night: new features, new songs. Performance at 8 o'clock. Special cars to all parts of the town at close of performance.

—The Parish Guild of Trinity church met at the residence of Rev. William Hyde, Tuesday evening. Reports came from the recent entertainment and sale at Lincoln Hall and it was found that the fair had realized something over $100 and expenses. A vote of thanks was passed to the ladies, to those on the various committees, to all those who had taken part in the entertainments and to those, who by their excellent work had contributed to the success of the affair. Refreshments were served, a very pleasant evening was spent and the meeting adjourned at a late hour.

—A meeting of the Union Literary Circle was held at the home of Mrs. Alice Cook, Monday evening, May 29th. A paper on "The Patriotic Women of America," both papers were well received. After intermission Mr. Hyde gave a fine reading of Robert Louis Stevenson's "Ballad of Tombraggan" and C. T. Crane a reading of "The Battle of Bushy Run." At the close of the program the committee for the closing social, reported, an invitation from Mr. and Mrs. Crane to meet with them Tuesday evening, May 31st, with the privilege of inviting one guest each. Our closing socials in past years have been among the most pleasing meetings of the year and we anticipate a very enjoyable evening at this coming one.

Baptist Church Notes

The Ladies Aid society held their monthly meeting in the vestry Wednesday afternoon.

—A blue serge suit and a fancy vest for summer. Order of C. R. Donbroder.

—The local letter carriers are being complimented all along their routes for their neat appearance in their summer uniforms and new caps in which they appear a week ago.

—The cutting room of the George E. Keith Co's factory No. 8, has been discontinued at this factory, since owing to a large increase in their output of women's shoes. The firm decided that every available space was necessary for the making, consequently the cutting is now being done at Campbell, Middleboro and Boston. The ladies have had their quarters moved up to the top floor adjoining the stitching room and with the new system in good working order, a large increase is expected in the daily output.

—A collection for the support of the Seminary at Brighton was taken up in the immediate congregation church, Sunday.

—Edward Anglin of Cambridge was the guest of relatives on Pleasant street, last Sunday and Monday.

—During the stay of the Detroit Club of the American Base League in Boston, this week, Owen Bush, the fast short stop of that team, has been the guest of Leo Howley of Broad street. Bush was formerly a member of the Indianapolis club of the American Association, but two years ago joined the ranks of the Major League. While in Indianapolis, Mr. Bush was a close friend of Daniel Howley of this town, and it was noted that the latter, who is now in the Detroit Club, Bush has the distinction of leading his team in batting and fielding in second place in the World's Series last year.

—The alarm from Box 23 Tuesday afternoon was for a blaze discovered in the building occupied by Seth E. Blackwell, grocer, on John Nelson street, directly opposite the Post Office. A quick response by the fire department, confined the fire to the room where it originated and the fire damage was slight but smoke and water reduced the value of Mr. Blackwell's stock somewhat as the damage was mostly on his side of the building. The room where the fire started is used only for storage and the origin of the fire is a matter of doubt.

—A few bargains in custom suits at C. R. Donbroder's.

—Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Hagan, Misses Dorothy and Katharine Hagan have returned to their home on Putnam street, after a short stay in the Hotel Haywood, where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hagan.

—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Cushing leave town for Oak Bluffs for a few days' stay previous to taking up their residence there for the summer.

—The East Weymouth Lodge of Good Templars will hold its next meeting Monday evening, May 23, at the rooms in Commercial Square. This will be an open meeting to those desirous to attend. A most enjoyable evening will be spent and for this occasion it is requested that ladies furnish help.

—The Golden Rule Circle of King's Daughters spent a most enjoyable day at the home of Mrs. W. P. Donbroder, as guests of Mrs. W. P. Donbroder. A shore dinner was served at noon.

—Charles Meade of Cain avenue who has been seriously ill, is resting comfortably after a serious operation for kidney trouble, performed last week.

—The Old Colony St. Ry. Co. received a large shipment of new semi-convertible double track cars at the East Weymouth now as the recent repairs of the track and roadbed around Madison and Commercial streets included the setting of switches at Station street and Madison street, connecting with the N. Y. & N. H. freight track.

—Lincoln Pratt has taken his Stanley car out of the garage where it was stored for the winter, and is now enjoying himself about the town.

—After a two weeks' illness, Mrs. Crest Saturday, passed away. Her funeral services were held from her late residence Monday, followed by a High Mass of Requiem at the church of the Immaculate Conception at nine o'clock. Rev. James W. Allison was the celebrant. The interment was in the St. Francis Xavier cemetery.

—Lorenz Lorenz, Cornelius Lohman, Edward Fraber and Joseph DeYoung acted as pallbearers.

—Wanted—Any person receiving copies of the genealogical work issued by the Lewis Historical Publishing Co., for which there is any misunderstanding in regard to having subscribed for the same, please address Box 6, South Weymouth, for concerted action.

ATHLETIC TRAINING.

To Acquire an Excess of Muscle May Prove Injurious.

Nothing could be more elusive than the idea that by a period of athletic training a man can buy in a stock of health and strength upon which he can draw later while engaged in a sedentary occupation. The truth is that the big muscles and hypertrophied heart of the athlete are perilous possessions for the man who no longer has the time or the inclination for using them. When he stops the exercises by which he gained them, instead of simply returning to their original size they suffer one or another of the many forms of degeneration and become incapable of performing their original services.

It is not quite true that all exercise for its own sake is harmless, for it is well to be prepared for the meeting of life's little emergencies as well as its ordinary and daily demands, but it is probably true that the emergencies apart, every man does enough in going about his ordinary business and pleasure to keep himself in the condition which that business and pleasure demand and that anything besides is superfluous or injurious. That athletes take one into the open air is less in commendation of athletics than an indictment of our houses, offices and stores for lack of adequate ventilation. If all the air we breathe were pure we could get along well enough without any open air at all. Any man who has the muscle he needs for doing the things he wants to do and should do has all the muscle he ought to have. To acquire more is a silly waste of time and perilous besides—New York Times.

Hayes, F. W. Rea, Miss Susie Hayes, Dorothy F. Rea and Amy L. Lovell; remarks by the pastor; due to Miss Lovell and Mrs. E. Houghton and a solo by Eleanor Blanchard.

—A party of thirty enjoyed a dinner and social evening at the Larchmere Saturday evening.

—An entertainment was given in the vestry Thursday evening in charge of the trustees. Mr. Warner of Brockton, impersonator, also violin and vocal solo, ice cream was for sale.

FEET OF SEA BEASTS.

Their Appearance When the Skin is Stripped Off.

Of all the feet that I have looked at I know only one more utterly filthy than the feet of a seal. I have seen the feet of the seal lion prop his great bulk in front, and that is the forked flip that extends from the blinder part of the same. How can it be so filthy with its white to carry such a burden of apparatus with it just for the sake of getting out into the air sometimes and pushing oneself about on the ice and on land. Why have the seals hairy feet? I believe I know the secret. It is the baby! No one knows where the porpoise and the whale cradle their newborn infants—it is so difficult to get the young ones out of the water. These sea people must be so filthy from the porpoise man, so they are forced to return to the land when the cares of maturity are on them.

I have called the feet of these sea beasts ridiculous things, and so they are as we see them. But strip off the skin, and lo, there appears a plain foot, with a few digits, each of several joints, tipped with claws, nowise essentially different, in short, from that with which the toad or frog first set on its feet. The difference is not in the foot, but in the way of using it. It is paralyzed by a contrivance so simple, so transmutable and so sufficient for every need that time and change could bring—Strand Magazine.

CHAPTER VIII.

GIBBEL'S SCORES A POINT.

THE next day all Paris buzzed and wondered about this American affair, as it was called.

Shortly before 9 by the white clock over the columned entrance to the Palais de Justice M. Paul passed through the great iron and gilt barrier that fronts the street and, turning to the left, mounted the wide stone stairway.

Two flights up the detective found himself in a room which opened off which opened seven doors leading to the offices of seven judges. Several strange resemblance to the fatal corridor at the Ansonia! And stranger still that Judge Hauteville's office should be No. 6.

Judge Hauteville presently arrived. "You look serious this morning," he said, remarking on the pale face.

"Yes," nodded M. Paul, "that's how I feel," and, settling himself in a chair, he proceeded to relate the events of the night.

The judge listened with grave attention. "You believe it was the assassin himself who met you?" he questioned.

"Don't you?" "You think his motive was to get the woman's address?" "Isn't that reasonable?"

Hautville shook his head. "He wouldn't have risked so much for a woman's address. He would have known that you hadn't replied the name and given it to one of us—say to me?"

"Ah, if I only had," sighed the detective.

"How did he know that you wouldn't remember the name? Can't you remember it at all?"

"That's what I've been trying to do," replied the other gloomily. "I've tried and tried, but the name won't come back to me."

An hour before, as arranged the previous night, Papa Tignol had started out to search for Kitzredde's lodgings. The American, who questioned by Gibbel at the prison, had obstinately refused to tell where he lived, and an examination of his quarters was a matter of immediate importance.

It was not Papa Tignol, however, who was to furnish this information, but the discomfited Gibbel, whose presence in the outer office was at this moment anything but a recommendation.

Walter, who had entered with a smile of triumph, "Ah, you have news for us?" exclaimed the judge.

Gibbel beamed. "I haven't wasted my time," he nodded. Then, with a start, he turned to the door. "I have found it," he called out.

"What?" "The name?" "The name?" "The name?"

Under this heading we have tried to give those who are interested in live stock, garden and field such matters as we thought would be of interest and profit and have been encouraged by favorable comments on it.

This week we devote from the usual class of matter to say something more particularly local. We have within our boundary line about 65,000 acres of land and most of it is adapted to crop raising and we are glad to note that soil has been turned up this season which has not felt the ploughshare before for many generations and with a good growing season will be done to solve the problem of the "High Cost of Living" and people will be fed from our soil and at a reasonable cost.

We are looking forward to an unusual exhibit of the product of Weymouth fields at the annual fair of the Weymouth Agricultural and Industrial Society this fall and learn with pleasure that Mr. Pearson superintendent of schools has interested the boys and girls of the schools in having a special exhibit of vegetables and flowers of their own raising.

Two years ago we offered some Gazette prizes along these lines and one enterprise had captured a $5.00 Gazette prize and several other prizes offered by the Society and we now make an offer of two prizes to the boys who will make the best exhibit of four kinds of vegetables of his own raising, a first prize of $5.00 and a second prize of $2.00. Prizes to be awarded by the Society committee.

Shoe Industry.

From about every place where the boot and shoe trade of a section of the country comes some reports of the shoe and tail trade by the continued cold weather. Summer goods that ought long ago to have been sold and in wearing are still on the shelves. That warmer weather must come is believed, so there is a steady trade in anticipation of the needs, but the usual rush of business is lacking.

Although the market has been thus affected, hope has not failed. The trade believes that the goods on hand will be disposed of when the weather becomes warmer, but meanwhile the oxfords and low-cut shoes have not had their linings. The situation of the selling end of the trade continues to have its influence on the manufacturing end, and much of the delay in placing orders may be credited to the backward spring; at the same time the question of price charged for production is having an effect. Some factories are busy to capacity; others are in need of orders soon; one manufacturer reports that his business is several thousand dollars worth better off than at the corresponding time last year; while others have orders on hand to keep plants running only a few weeks. Fall business is not developing properly; supplementary and duplicate orders for late summer delivery are for fall shoes are not being given out, though samples for the spring of 1911 are selling easily.

The uncertainty of the seasons which in recent years have been so delayed and overlapping is causing dealers to wonder just when to commence buying and how much to buy. That it could be possible to place their orders at advantageous terms has been asserted, and now it is reported that some manufacturers have accepted contracts at figures which were below current prices, and having made such concessions are not lacking for orders. In contrast to these are the manufacturers who refuse to shade prices. Between these extremes are the buyers. Which way they will turn depends on the next few weeks, but so long as manufacturers make concessions there is little reason to expect new business without such bargains.

The production of men's heavy, medium grade shoes is slow, orders being small in volume and few in number. There is a better demand for a better grade in satin, black, chrome, etc., and medium and fine grade are in fair condition. Women's goods are yet in need of more orders to make their production a factor in trade.

Manufacturers of women's shoes have been studying the present market, and some are deciding that the ankle-strap pump is not a desirable article and that another season will not see so many of them; that some grades will sell and there will be a demand, but the best lines will not include them, the two-eyel and three-eyel oxford, with its ribbon ties, being more attractive and satisfactory. If the pump is made a trifle longer, as is proposed, the ankle-strap will not be so necessary. There is some expression against lengthening the pump, and it is intimated that the slight increase will not be so serious as was anticipated. - Boston Transcript.

GATHERED UP.

We accomplish more by prudence than by force.—Tacitus.

Every man should keep a fair sized cemetery in which to bury the faults of his friends.—Henry Ward Beecher.

A man's money is like his blood—it is most useful when it is circulating in the interests of life.—Rev. C. C. Woods.

We may make God's will our own and find the paths of righteousness the paths of joy as well.—Rev. W. Q. Roselle.

Anger is a pure waste of vitality. It helps nobody and hinders everybody. It is always foolish and always disgraceful.

"That man said he never forgets a favor."
"He speaks truly," answered Bings. "He did me a favor 15 years ago and has been talking about it ever since."—Stray Stories.

Did you ever notice that when a man calls a job well enough done that it hasn't been done as well as it might have been? A good many times, "good enough" means precisely half enough.

Policeman—Do you have to care for the dog? Nurse—No. The mistress says "I'm too young and inexperienced. I only look after the children."—Life.

I believe that the empire of selfishness must crumble and the empire of love supplant it. The man who lives for himself has the invincible purpose of the universe against him.

Guest at a restaurant—Excuse me, sir, can you let me come to the telephone? You have been there twenty minutes without saying a word.

"Sorry, sir, I'm talking to my wife."—Pele Mole.

The man who invests his money in well-conducted local enterprises, giving employment to his fellow citizens is really doing more for his locality than the one who makes a loud noise and stops there.

A Wichita child who had been absent from school brought back the following excuse when he returned: "Dear Teacher: Please excuse me. I was sick and had to stay at home to do the washing and ironing."—Wichita (Kan.) Beacon.

The poorest of us live to some advantage. We see as we grow older, where we would not differently if we had the opportunity. The opportunity often comes in the shape of children whom we may train to avoid the mistakes we made ourselves.

"That man hasn't any sense of humor," said Mr. Growcher.

"Why, he's always trying to amuse his friends."
"That's just it. If he had any sense of humor he would see that there is nothing funny in interrupting a man's work to tell him funny stories."—Washington Star.

Never in the history of the world has there been such a stupendous manifestation of God's purpose to redeem the physical lot of man from everything which depresses and retards and stultifies. The earth as the garden of God where man can grow healthy bodies and know something of the joy of living, is a dream; yes, but a dream that is coming true.—Rev. E. F. Sanderson.

NOT MOVED BY KINDNESS.

A stout woman entered a crowded car and took hold of a strap directly in front of a man seated in the corner. As she started she lunged against his newspaper and trod heavily on his toes. As soon as he could extricate himself he rose and offered her his seat.

"You are very kind, sir," she said, panting for breath.

"Not at all, madam," he replied. "It's not kindness. It's simply self defense."

He or she who enters a house for the first time is supposed in the Italian countries to bring it good or bad luck for the whole twelve months. This belief gives rise to a curious observation. The visitor who crosses the threshold picks up a stone (token of strength) or a green twig (emblem of health and fruitfulness) and lays it on the hearth. He also brings with him some grains of salt, which he casts into the flames, and then, squatting by the fireside, wishes his hosts "a prosperous year, a plentiful crop and many blessings." Then as the grains of salt burst and crackle in the fire he utters the following quaint formula: "As I am sitting, even so may sit the hen and warm the eggs. As this salt splits, even so may split the eggs of the clucking hen and the chickens come forth."

Reptiles' Eggs.
Reptiles' eggs are not very attractive objects. In the case of crocodiles and many kinds of tortoises they are pale colored or white and resemble those of birds in shape. But the eggs of the gopher tortoise are remarkable for its complete roundness. It might well be mistaken for a golf ball. Many snakes' eggs are soft skinned, brown as to color and look for all the world like a number of new potatoes.—Scientific American.

Enthusiasm.
The organist sent a little boy to inquire of the minister what the first hymn would be. "Tell her," said the minister. "I would like 'Carol, Brothers, Carol.'"

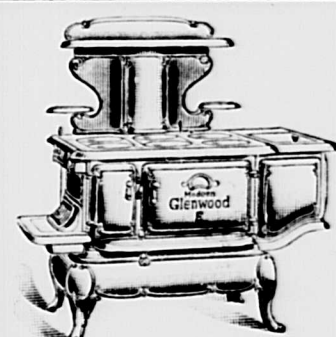

The little boy thought he said "Howl, Brothers, Howl," and told the organist that the minister's selection was "Yell, Brothers, Yell."—New York Times.

Runs in the Family.
Mr. Aggie (to Mr. Stoutman, running for a car)—Hello, old boy! I thought you were too lazy to run like that. Mr. Stoutman (laughingly)—Easily explained, my dear boy. Laziness runs in our family.—Lippincott's.

Cramped.
Knicker—How large is their suburban place? Rooster—Large! Why, they have to have folding beds for the fowls.—New York Sun.

Bless the fools! What would we do if every one were wise?—Antrim.

The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co.

Following its usual custom the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad will withdraw on Memorial Day many of its local trains in and out of Boston. No trains have been posted calling attention to the trains discontinued and to others which will make extra stops.
Those intending to travel on this day should consult these posters.

SUMMER TIME TABLE

On June 5th the N. Y. N. H. & H. R. R. will put in effect its usual summer schedule of trains. Slight changes in the schedule have been made.

Trains which have been consolidated at South Braintree and Braintree, in the future will be run to and from Boston independently, and the maintenance of schedule time will be greatly facilitated.

The train leaving Boston, weekdays at 10:10 a. m., will run through to Plymouth, and a new train will leave Plymouth at 2:10 p. m., for Boston, with connections to and from the Hanover Branch.

Trains giving details will be in the hands of agents Thursdays, June 2nd.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

The Memorial Day exercises will be held in the hall Friday afternoon at quarter of one. All are invited to attend.

The junior class has a studying ratio and proportion.

The senior class held a meeting in Room 6, Tuesday. After some discussion it was voted that Chickering Co. of Boston should act as class photographer. Upon hearing the report of the motto committee a "Latin Minnie Vini" was selected as their motto.

The practice of the graduation songs "The Miller's Woe" and "In Spain" is going on steadily in the music periods. Miss Nash pleased the school Wednesday morning by stating that their singing is better than many graduation music which has been conducted, particularly that of the boys.

All classes are relieved by the fact that the examination for which they are now preparing will be the last for the year.

The baseball team will play with Bridge-water Normal at Weymouth tomorrow.

The ball team is realizing the privilege of playing at Clapps building and field. The convenience and excellent accommodations for the players and spectators is appreciated by all.

The ball team defeated Abington, High School, Monday 4 to 1.

At the meeting of the Weymouth High School, Monday, May 23rd, the following were made officers of the year: W. O. Collier, president; Ellis J. Pletcher and John S. Bacon, vice-presidents; Everett Lund, clerk; J. O. Bates, treasurer; and they were balloted for and elected. Mr. Lund thought, however, that the labor and honor of being clerk should be divided among the members, he had several votes, and accordingly withdrew in favor of someone else and E. W. "Taps" for John Fennell.

John Fennell passed quietly away from his earthly home 63 Broad Street, East Weymouth, last Saturday night. Mr. Fennell was born in Ireland 20 years ago last January but when John was a mere lad the family emigrated to this country and East Weymouth became their home and in nearly forty years of life in East Weymouth as boy and man but few men have been better known or had a wider circle of friends and acquaintances than John Fennell.

He had hardly attained his majority when the Civil War came on but he had become a true American citizen and went to the front in the 28th Mass. Infantry, saw hard service in camp and field, and was severely wounded by a rifleball passing through the ankle in the siege of Petersburg.

When the war was over Mr. Fennell returned to East Weymouth, married and settled down to his life as a citizen. The home he established became an ideal one and in later years has been the center of a musical circle of no mean ability.

Mr. Fennell has always taken a deep interest in political and social affairs, an active worker in Republican campaigns and sundry organizations, notably so in Reynolds Post 28, G. A. R. and Division 2, A. O. U. H.

Funeral services and burial took place on Tuesday morning. At the close of brief services at the home under escort of Reynolds Post 28 G. A. R. and delegation from Div. 2, A. O. U. H., the remains were taken to the Immaculate Conception church, where extensive services were held. Rev. James W. Allison, Rev. Maurice Lynch of the home church and Rev. Fr. Fitzgerald of Braintree officiating. The choir, Miss Nellie Noonan director, assisted in all the services.

The ushers at the church were John W. Cronin, Joseph A. Kelly and Robert E. Croker.

The burial was at St. Francis Xavier cemetery to which place the remains were escorted by Reynolds Post 28 and followed by a long line of mourning friends and relatives.

The bearers were J. Q. Spear, B. F. Thomas and H. Walker of the Post and P. Quinlan, J. Cullen, F. Noonan of Div. 2, A. O. U. H., P. Coffey, T. Conatlian, and Ed. Tobin also representing Div. 2 as special detail.

In the absence of Commander Drake, P. C. Woods Turner and Chaplain Dunbar rendered the G. A. R. burial service at the grave in a very impressive manner. Taps were sounded and John Fennell, a soldier, a local citizen and a good neighbor had entered into rest.

Mr. Fennell is survived by three sons, William, John and Joseph P. and three daughters, Alice, wife of William J. Fitzsimmons, Nellie and Maria.

Weymouth Grocers' Association.

The Weymouth Grocers' Association was thirteen years old on Wednesday and celebrated the event by its regular annual banquet, a business meeting, and some talk.

The first feature of the evening, was a banquet in the lower hall of Masonic building and the grocery trade of Weymouth was well represented at the table with Edwin B. Pillsbury, editor of the Grocers' Magazine of Boston; W. P. Denbroeker, president of Weymouth Board of Trade; and the editor of the Gazette, as special guests.

The banquet was enjoyed in several countries and the president, Thomas H. Lynch, called the meeting to order for business. Reports of the treasurer and others showed the association to be on a good financial basis and interested in the work for which it was created.

A committee on nominations reported the following officers for the ensuing year: W. O. Collier, president; Ellis J. Pletcher and John S. Bacon, vice-presidents; Everett Lund, clerk; J. O. Bates, treasurer; and they were balloted for and elected. Mr. Lund thought, however, that the labor and honor of being clerk should be divided among the members, he had several votes, and accordingly withdrew in favor of someone else and E. W. Memorial Services.

Last week we published in full, General Orders No. 1 and No. 2 of Commander W. A. Drake of Post 28 G. A. R. in regard to Memorial Exercises of the G. A. R.

Execution of those orders commenced today and it will be a "School Day" all over town as exercises will be held in nearly all of the school buildings. In the main it will be a work of the teachers and scholars but there will be detailed visitors from the Post to all of the schools and army experiences will be added to the patriotic exercises of the scholars.

By invitation of the Rev. Robert H. Crocker of the Union church of Weymouth and Braintree, the Post and other patriotic bodies will attend divine services at that church, Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

On Monday details will decorate the graves at St. Francis Xavier cemetery, the Reed, Ashwood and Lake View cemeteries early in the day and at 8 o'clock, all will assemble at Bicknell Square, North Weymouth, where the line will be formed and James L. Bates Camp S. V., as escort, proceed to the Old North cemetery where the customary services will be held after which cars will be taken for Lincoln Square where the line will again be formed and proceed to Village cemetery where cars will again be taken for South Weymouth, forming a line at Columbia street and proceeding to Highland cemetery, thence to Columbian Square and then cars to Union street cemetery, and thence to the grave in a very impressive manner.

There were some 200 in the procession, many of them in uniform. The procession was led by the Town Band, East Weymouth, where dinner will be served by Reynolds W. R. C.

After an hour of rest and refreshment, Fairmount cemetery will be the objective point and there will be the final decorations of the day and the line will march to Jackson Square where cars will be taken to the Clapp Memorial grounds and building.

A dress parade of the Post and Sons of Veterans will be held on the field and short exercises in the building will close the events of Memorial Day for 1910.

MEMORIAL DAY.

In the dream of Northern poets, The brave who in battle died, Fight on in the shadowy plains; In the fields of the upper sky; And, as we read the sounding rhyme, The heroic fancy leads us on, The ghostly ring of the sword, And the clash of the spectral spears.

We think with impetuous questioning, Of the brothers whom we have lost, And we try to track in death's mystery The flight of each valiant ghost. And far and wide we search for them, And we feel through our sorrow's night That those young souls are striving still, Somewhere for truth and right.

A chosen few, they are marching on, In a wider field than ours; Those bright battalions still fight, The schemes of the heavenly powers; And high, brave thoughts float down to us, The echoes of that far fight. Like the gleam of a distant picket's gun, Through the shades of the evening night.

No fear for them! In our lower field, Let us keep our arms unstained, That all may be worthy to stand with them, On the shining heights they've gained. We shall meet and greet in closing ranks, When the bugles of life shall sound recall, And the Battle of Life be won.

—John Hay.

MOTHER OF THE ARMIES.

The mothers of the armies, In the churches of our sleep, No more to wake and worry, No more to wake and worry, For rest has spiked the cannon, And checked the bugle's throat, And hushed our roll and rally, And hushed our roll and rally.

The mothers of the armies, They seek their sons to battle, From many a cottage door, The sons they loved and cherished, And high, brave thoughts float down to us, The echoes of that far fight. Like the gleam of a distant picket's gun, Through the shades of the evening night.

No fear for them! In our lower field, Let us keep our arms unstained, That all may be worthy to stand with them, On the shining heights they've gained. We shall meet and greet in closing ranks, When the bugles of life shall sound recall, And the Battle of Life be won.

Common sense.

"Common sense." They're just the thing. You're tired of keeping the funds in the tin box in a kitchen or in a box, and some one of us might pick up the box and skip. You, being a woman, would probably have the best chance to get away with it.

"Oh, I would be too frightened, to do anything like that."

I was not prepared for so much force. I thought in this modest girl, after all, I should not meet a woman who has had the energy and pluck to come out here to earn her own living instead of sitting around at home waiting for a husband.

For a little while I had been thinking of me that the girl I had been thinking of? I was very much inclined to continue my caresses, to be wound up with an honorable proposal of marriage.

I got a tin box out of the vault and, scrapping together all the loose funds necessary for making payments during the day, put them in it and placed it under the paying teller's desk in order that no one could see without being continually running outside his compartment for it. But after it had been filled and placed in position Imogen suggested that while there it would be handy for the person who was to snatch it up and run away with it. I therefore placed it under a small table by the back door through which it was to be carried in case of attack. I also bought a few yards of quarter inch rope, which I deposited in a closet.

The only thing remaining to be done was to see that the revolvers were kept before the door. I was going to do it, but I would not propose to Imogen Bradley? I resolved to ask her from what part of the east she came and to make inquiries. So I asked her that question one day carefully, that she might not suspect my intention, and she gave me the name of a college town in Massachusetts. I knew no one there, so I was going to be before the door. I was going to be before the door. I was going to be before the door.

I was going to be before the door. I was going to be before the door. I was going to be before the door. I was going to be before the door. I was going to be before the door.

Be Wise in Time

You cannot keep well unless the bowels are regular. Neglect of this rule of health invites half the sickness from which we suffer. Keep the bowels right; otherwise waste matter and poisons which should pass out of the body, find their way into the blood and sicken the whole system. Don't wait until the bowels are constipated; take

BEECHAM'S PILLS

They are the finest natural laxative in the world—gentle, safe, prompt and thorough. They strengthen the stomach muscles, and will not injure the delicate mucous lining of the bowels. Beecham's Pills have a constitutional action. That is, the longer you take them, the less frequently you need them. They help Nature help herself and

CHAPTER IX.
BY SPECIAL ORDER.

ALICE passed a night of suffering and sleeplessness after her lover's arrest. The next day Mother Bonneton brought her a lady of striking beauty, who wanted to see the towers of the ancient cathedral. When alone with her Alice was amazed to hear her visitor speak of knowing Lloyd Kirtledge, and she learned that the woman in some mysterious way was connected with the shocking murder of Martinez. That the strange visitor came to further some purpose associated with Kirtledge became evident to Alice, whose amazement grew, for, in addition, the woman seemed to know considerable about M. Coppel.

Finally the visitor said: "You must go to M. Coppel at once. Tell the old scientist I have sent you on an errand for me. I can manage that. But what shall I say to M. Paul?"

The woman drew forth a roll of 100 franc notes and handed them to Alice. "Speak to him about getting a good lawyer for the prisoner—and the money. I will send more if necessary. Tell him what has happened between us and then put yourself in his hands. Do whatever he thinks best. There is one thing I want M. Kirtledge to be told. I wish you would write it down so that he can read it. Here is a pencil, and here is a piece of paper." With nervous haste she tore a page from a little memorandum book and dictated a few lines. "Write this," she said, "and then give it to M. Coppel. He will read it and then tell me what he thinks."

"I beg your pardon," she murmured. "Are you interested in my plaster cast?" she asked pleasantly. "I was looking at this hand," replied the girl. "I have seen one like it."

Coppel shook his head good-naturedly. "That is very improbable," he said. "I have never seen one like it."

"You mean in a museum?" "No, no, in life."

"You have seen a hand with a little finger as long as this?" "Yes, I have," she said. "I have seen it as long as the third finger and square at the end. I've often noticed it."

"Then you have seen something very uncommon, madam. That is the most remarkable hand in my collection. It is the hand of a man who lived nearly 2000 years ago. He was one of the greatest criminals the world has ever known."

The detective's curiosity was aroused. "Would you mind telling me the name of the person—of course it is a name—who has this hand?"

"Yes," said Alice, "it is a name, but I should not like to give his name after he has told me to."

"A man who you like?" "Why—er—why, yes, I like him," she said. "But the detective noted a strange look in her eyes. He changed the subject. "You'll have a cup of tea with me, won't you? Then we can talk comfortably. You haven't told me your name."

"My name is Alice Groener. My family lived in Belgium, but I have only a cousin left. He is a woodcarver in Brussels. He would pay my board with the help of my work."

"Would you mind telling me something, madam?" he said suddenly. "What is it?"

"I'm asking this in the interest of M. Kirtledge. Tell me if you know anything about this crime of which he is accused. Do you know who was murdered?"

"I have seen the man named Martinez," she said. "He was a man named Martinez. She started at the word. "What—the billiard player?" she cried. "Did you know him?"

"Oh, yes, very well. I just thought of a little thing that made me unhappy, but it has nothing to do with this case. You believe me, don't you?"

"Of course I believe you," he smiled. "Now I am going to give you some of this tea. I'm afraid it's getting cold. Now we'll settle down comfortably, and you can tell me what brought you here—tell me all about it."

So Alice began and told him about the mysterious lady.

"This is very important," he said gravely. "What a pity you can't get her name." He reflected that for the second time this woman had escaped him.

"She speaks fluently, like a foreigner who has lived a long time in Paris, but she has a slight accent."

"Ah! Now give me her message again. Are you sure you remember it exactly?"

"Quite sure. Besides, she made me write it down so as not to miss a word. Here it is," and, producing the little marks on the blotter and then a written scroll—all with a singular fixed look in her eyes.

"I have to excuse me," said the girl, "I am sorry."

Alice started to her feet. "I beg your pardon," she said. "I am sorry."

"Why, what is this?" he exclaimed, gazing at her.

"Oh, excuse me, sir," begged Alice. "I have spoiled your nice blotter. I am so sorry."

"Never mind the blotter, but—" He bent closer over the scribbled words, and then, with a troubled look, "Did you write this?"

"Why—er—why—yes, sir, I'm afraid I did," she stammered.

"Don't you know you did?" "I—I wasn't thinking," she pleaded in fright.

"He went to his desk, picked up a printed form, filled it out quickly and handed it to her.

"There," he said, and his voice was almost gentle. "I guess I don't quite understand about this thing."

Alice looked at the paper blankly. "That was the rule for a person an secret to see any one except his lawyer, but I know the director of the Santa prison, and I think—"

"Alice shook her head negatively. "What can we do?" murmured Alice, twisting her fingers together.

"We must get at the truth, we must find this woman who came to see you. The quickest way to do that is through the director of the Santa prison. If we can make him speak, so far he has refused to say a word, but there is one person who ought to know his lips—that is, the director of the Santa prison."

"Oh, yes," exclaimed Alice, her face lighting with new hope. "I think I could, I am sure I could, only—if I tell me see him?"

"That is the point. It is against the prison rule for a person an secret to see any one except his lawyer, but I know the director of the Santa prison, and I think—"
